

Vocabulary Extra

Common adjectives

1 Match the pictures with the adjectives.

- big
- boring
- cheap
- difficult
- dirty
- early
- fast
- good
- happy
- long
- loud
- lucky
- rich
- ugly
- young

2 Match the adjectives in the box with their opposites in Exercise 1.

bad – good

~~bad~~ beautiful clean easy expensive interesting late old poor quiet sad short slow small unlucky

3 Work with a partner. Ask and answer questions.

What's the opposite of dirty?

Clean. What's the opposite of poor?

Focus on like

1 Complete the table with the phrases in the box.

~~Do you like sushi?~~ I don't like washing up. She doesn't like him.
 They'd like a holiday. They like cooking.

Some uses of like	Examples
a) like + noun = ☺	I really like Picasso. I don't like it. (1) Do you like sushi? (2) _____
b) like + ing = enjoy an activity	We like sailing. He likes going out. (3) _____ (4) _____
c) would like + noun = want something	I'd like a chicken sandwich. Would you like a drink? (5) _____

2 Write your own example sentence for each use of like.

Transcript

It was Thursday.

'Eleanor, I have been at Northanger Abbey for four weeks,' Catherine said. 'I must go home.'

'Oh, please do not go!' Eleanor said.

'Do stay, Miss Morland,' Henry said. He smiled at Catherine.

Catherine was happy. 'Yes, Henry loves me,' she said to herself.

On Saturday, Henry went back to Woodston. Catherine and Eleanor were together all day. Late in the evening, Catherine was in her bedroom. She was reading a book.

She heard a sound outside her room. She went to the door and opened it. Eleanor was standing there. Her face was white.

'What is wrong?' Catherine asked.

'Oh, how can I tell you? How can I tell you?' Eleanor said.

'Has something happened at Woodston?' Catherine asked.

'No, no. My father has come back,' said Eleanor. 'Catherine, we are leaving Northanger Abbey on Monday. We are going to visit some friends. You must go back to Fullerton tomorrow. I am sorry, Catherine.'

'Tomorrow!' Catherine said.

Eleanor started to cry.

'Have I done something wrong?' Catherine asked.

'No, no. But my father is very angry,' said Eleanor.

Catherine did not sleep well that night. She woke very early. At six o'clock, Eleanor came into her bedroom.

'My father's carriage will take you home,' Eleanor said. 'You must leave at seven o'clock.'

Catherine did not eat any breakfast. She was very sad. Soon the carriage was at the door.

'I will write to you, Eleanor,' Catherine said. 'Please tell Henry—'

But Catherine could not say any more. She ran to the carriage. Soon, she had left Northanger Abbey.

