Transcript

It was January 1802. Miss Catherine Morland was very excited. She was going to stay in the city of Bath for six weeks. She was going to stay with her friends, Mr and Mrs Allen.

‘Bath is a beautiful city,’ Mrs Allen said. We will enjoy ourselves in Bath, Catherine. The best people in Society will be there. We will dance at balls and we will go to plays.’

‘Will I meet a handsome young man?’ Catherine asked herself.

Catherine Morland was seventeen years old. She was a pretty, happy girl. She was slim and she had dark curly hair.

Catherine lived with her family in the village of Fullerton. Her father was the clergyman of the church.

It was the day of the journey. Catherine put her clothes in leather cases. Her mother helped her.

‘Take some warm clothes,’ Mrs Morland said. ‘The nights will be cold!’

Soon, everything was ready. Mr Morland gave his daughter some money. Catherine got into the Allens’ carriage. She said goodbye to her family. And Catherine Morland started on her journey to Bath!
