The most famous RESTAURANTS in the world

These three restaurants are some of the best and most famous restaurants in the world.

The Fat Duck, Bray, England

This 450-year-old pub is in a village near London. The owner of The Fat Duck, Heston Blumenthal, taught himself to cook. He cooks food that is delicious and fun. There's steak, chicken and fish on the menu, but also more unusual things like bacon and egg ice cream!

Dress: casual Cost: about £80 per person

El Bulli, Ala Montjoi, Spain

Some people think the chef at this restaurant, Ferran Adrià, is the best cook in the world. El Bulli is on the coast, about two hours from Barcelona, and it has wonderful views of the sea. It's very difficult to get a reservation because it's only open for six months of the year, and there are only fifty seats. But the food is amazing! The menu has a lot of traditional vegetable and seafood dishes, but it's especially famous for its strange dishes like bread with oil and chocolate!

Dress: casual Cost: about £150 per person

Aragawa, Tokyo, Japan

This is the most expensive restaurant in the world! It was the first steakhouse in Japan and it's famous for its beef steak. The beef comes from cows which live near Tokyo. The beef tastes so good because the cows drink beer! At Aragawa you don't eat the steak with chips. It comes with only pepper and mustard.

Dress: formal Cost: about £300 per person

5. A STRANGE ROOM

Sherlock Holmes and Dr Watson visit Helen's home to investigate her sister's death.

So, on the left is your stepfather's room, Julia's is in the middle, and yours is on the right?

Yes, but I'm using Julia's room now.
